In May 2020, the Consumers Energy Foundation donated $1.8 million to nine community organizations to provide a lifeline during COVID-19 to small businesses across Michigan – focusing in particular on helping female- and minority-owned businesses. Other local organizations also provided financial support, bringing the total to $4.3 million.

We’re Better Together

In May 2020, the Consumers Energy Foundation donated $1.8 million to nine community organizations to provide a lifeline during COVID-19 to small businesses across Michigan – focusing in particular on helping female- and minority-owned businesses. Other local organizations also provided financial support, bringing the total to $4.3 million.

We’re Better Together

In May 2020, the Consumers Energy Foundation donated $1.8 million to nine community organizations to provide a lifeline during COVID-19 to small businesses across Michigan – focusing in particular on helping female- and minority-owned businesses. Other local organizations also provided financial support, bringing the total to $4.3 million.

We’re Better Together

In May 2020, the Consumers Energy Foundation donated $1.8 million to nine community organizations to provide a lifeline during COVID-19 to small businesses across Michigan – focusing in particular on helping female- and minority-owned businesses. Other local organizations also provided financial support, bringing the total to $4.3 million.

We’re Better Together

In May 2020, the Consumers Energy Foundation donated $1.8 million to nine community organizations to provide a lifeline during COVID-19 to small businesses across Michigan – focusing in particular on helping female- and minority-owned businesses. Other local organizations also provided financial support, bringing the total to $4.3 million.

We’re Better Together

In May 2020, the Consumers Energy Foundation donated $1.8 million to nine community organizations to provide a lifeline during COVID-19 to small businesses across Michigan – focusing in particular on helping female- and minority-owned businesses. Other local organizations also provided financial support, bringing the total to $4.3 million.

We’re Better Together

In May 2020, the Consumers Energy Foundation donated $1.8 million to nine community organizations to provide a lifeline during COVID-19 to small businesses across Michigan – focusing in particular on helping female- and minority-owned businesses. Other local organizations also provided financial support, bringing the total to $4.3 million.