

Starting in the late 1940s with a ski run, a used single chairlift and a warming hut, Boyne Mountain founder Everett Kircher began a resort and leisure corporation that now includes not only winter sports but an indoor waterpark, lodging, dining, golf, zipline adventures, and a host of outdoor sports for all seasons. And you can even plug in your EV while you're playing or staying. We spoke with Sustainability Specialist Aaron Clark about Boyne Mountain's journey to provide EV charging.

PROTECTING THE PLAYGROUND

In 2021, Boyne Resorts introduced the ForeverProject to address sustainability, accountability, and reduction of environmental impacts through reporting, training, and action. ## WHAT LED BOYNE MOUNTAIN TO OFFER EV CHARGING?

Examples of the ForeverProject include low-energy snowmaking equipment, a 1.7-Megawatt photovoltaic solar panel system that generates clean power for the resort, and EV charging stations. Leveraging the rebates from the Consumers Energy PowerMIDrive program, Boyne Mountain offers EV charging at no cost to guests at two locations. The Mountain Grand Lodge and Spa parking lot features two EnelX JuiceBox Level 2 chargers and two Tesla Destination chargers. The Boynehof Lodge accommodation has two more JuiceBoxes.

HAVING FUN WHILE BEING GREEN

Load up your EV with skis to hit the slopes, hiking boots to walk across the 1,200 foot long and 118-foot high SkyBridge Michigan, and a swimsuit to float in Avalanche Bay Waterpark.

Whether you're toying with the idea of enjoying winter sports made possible by Mother Nature or high-efficiency snowmakers, floating in the advanced energy pools and hot tubs or just grabbing a bowl of white chicken chili, drive up to Boyne Mountain Resort in your EV and get charged up at Everett Kircher's vision of Pure Michigan.
